PR, MARKETING AND THE MODERN CUSTOMER JOURNEY

83% of the B2B Buyer Journey is Spent Without Seller Involvement

Source: DreamData 8 B2B go-to-market benchmarks

01

Most of what will convince your customer to work with you does not involve sales.

02

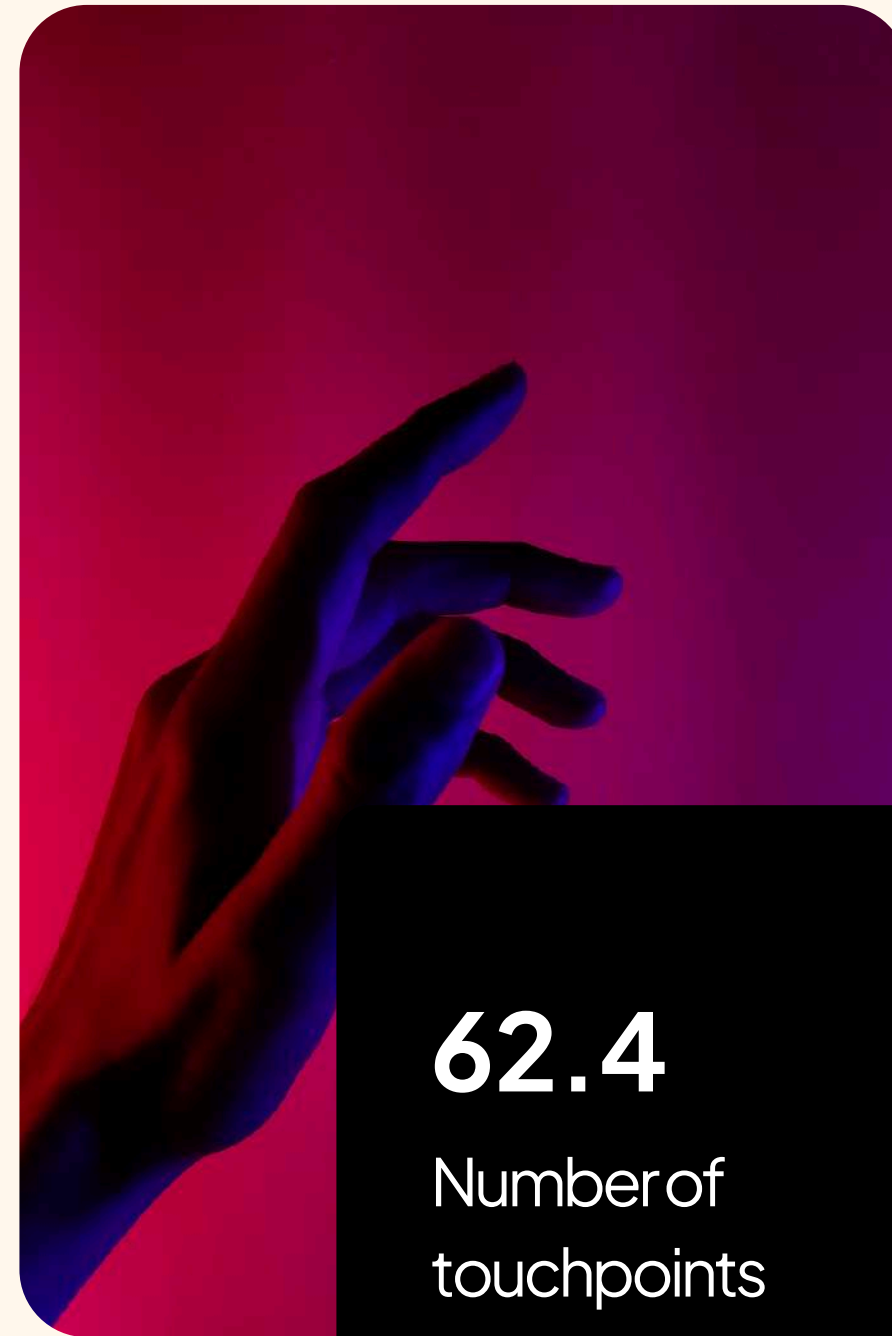

Modern buyers are looking for case studies, reports, articles, podcasts, and any other channels where they can learn more and be assured that they can trust you and your company.

03

89% of C-level executives consider brand reputation the most important factor in B2B purchase decisions

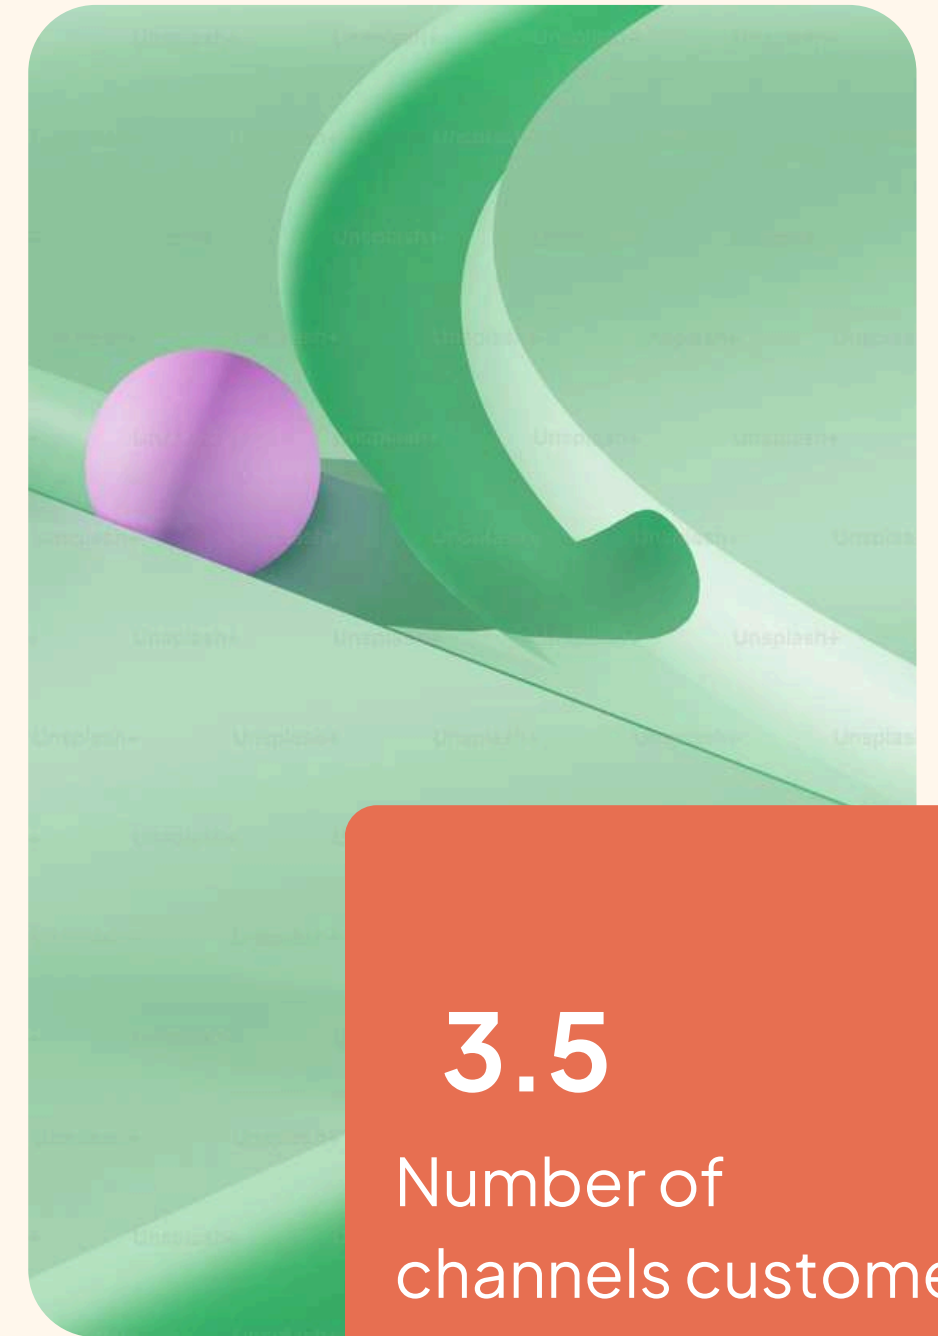

The B2B Customer Journey Is Increasingly Long and Complex

B2B buyers now need more touch points across more channels (sales, white papers, PR, trade shows, etc.) before they trust a company enough to work with them.

62.4

Number of touchpoints before a deal is closed

3.5

Number of channels customer interacts with before a sale

Where PR and Marketing Can Help

CREATE AWARENESS

Build a public image and raise awareness of your company can help to generate leads and make it easier for customers to research your company.

PUSH PAST EVALUATION STAGE

Most B2B deals get stuck at final evaluation stage. By reinforcing credibility and key messaging PR, you can push the buyer to close

BUILD CREDIBILITY

Modern B2B buyers are skeptical of sales tactics. Securing media placements, thought leadership opportunities and positive press helps promote trustworthiness.
